Teaching and Learning in the 21st Century with Paula Rutherford

Paula Rutherford, president of Just ASK and author of Why Didn't I Learn This in College?, is returning to work with new teachers as they begin their careers with the Department of Catholic Schools. All participants will receive a copy of Paula's best-selling book Why Didn't I Learn This in College? and a Why Didn't I Learn This in College? Participant's Manual.

Teachers participating in these highly interactive TIP sessions will leave with:

- A plan for the first week of school
- A comprehensive list of procedures and routines to put in place so that their classrooms are organized for learning
- An expanded repertoire of active learning strategies they can use to help students access prior knowledge, process their learning, make personal connections, set purpose for reading, and build vocabulary
- Multiple ways to check for understanding and to gather and use formative assessment data
- An array of options for scaffolding instruction for students lacking in background knowledge, second language learners, and students with other learning challenges
- Strategies for creating a learning-centered environment that is welcoming, safe, non-threatening, yet appropriately challenging
